

Last Chance in 2012 to see Port on Free Harbor Tour Reservations open Monday, September 10, for October dates

August 31, 2012

Enjoy the sights and sounds of a major international seaport close-up on one of the free, narrated harbor tours offered by the Port of Long Beach. All you need is a reservation.

Reservations open 8 a.m. Monday, September 10, for the October tours. Go to www.polb.com/porttours to see tour dates and make a reservation online. You can also make a reservation by calling (562) 283-7700 when reservations open.

October is the final month of the Port's harbor tour season. The Port's tour program this year has included a special "sunset cruise" each month, capturing the harbor at evening time.

The Port of Long Beach, the second busiest seaport in the United States, is a hub of international commerce with massive freight ships, powerful tugboats and soaring cranes. You can see it all from the water on one of our 90-minute tours offered through October.

Seating is limited and spaces go fast, so reserve promptly. The October dates will be the last in the tour season. Tours will resume in May 2013.
