Top Seaport Honors Go to Long Beach Ranked No. 1 among North American ports

June 29, 2015

The Port of Long Beach was named the best seaport in North America at the recent Asian Freight, Logistics and Supply Chain Awards in Hong Kong, hosted by the shipping trade publication Asia Cargo News.

The award recognizes the best ports as judged by importers, exporters, and logistics and supply chain professionals. In the past, the program was organized by another publication, CargoNews Asia. If viewed as a continuation of those awards, this is the Port of Long Beach's 17th time in the last 20 years winning the Best North American Seaport honors. Last year, Long Beach won the award for being the world's Best Green Seaport, based on its environmental record.

"We're working harder than ever to provide the service to our customers that will keep them coming back to Long Beach," said Long Beach Board of Harbor Commissioners President Doug Drummond. "It's great to see the results of efforts, and I'd like to thank Asia Cargo News for this award."

The more than 15,000 industry professionals who read Asia Cargo News participated in the nomination and selection of winners. The awards were presented recently at an event in Hong Kong. Awards also are given in many categories, including best shipping lines, container terminals, air cargo terminals, airports and rail haulers.

The Port of Long Beach is one of the world's premier seaports, a gateway for trans-Pacific trade and a trailblazer in goods movement and environmental stewardship. With 140 shipping lines connecting Long Beach to 217 seaports, the Port handles $180 billion in trade annually, supporting hundreds of thousands of Southern California jobs.
