Port of Long Beach named best in North America

Picked as top seaport for 11 of last 12 years

May 16, 2007

Cargonews Asia readers have voted the Port of Long Beach as the best seaport in North America in the trade newspaper's 2007 Asian Freight and Supply Chain Awards.

It's the third consecutive year and the 11th time in the past 12 years that the Port of Long Beach has been named the best on the continent, allowing the port to dominate the category for more than a decade.

"The Port of Long Beach is once again pleased to accept this honor, as it recognizes our successful partnerships with our customers," said Port of Long Beach Executive Director Richard Steinke.

Other best seaports around the world named in the 2007 awards include the Port of Singapore in Asia, the Port of Rotterdam in Europe and the Port of Jebel Ali, Dubai, in the Middle East.

Cargonews Asia is a news source for 12,500 logistics and supply chain professionals in the Asia-Pacific region. The awards also recognize the best shipping lines, container terminals, air cargo terminals, airports and rail haulers.
