

News Release

Be Part of the Adventure Oct. 4 at Green Port Fest

Exciting boat tours, train rides, fascinating displays await you

September 19, 2008

Come to the Port of Long Beach on Saturday, October 4, 2008, for the Fourth Annual Green Port Fest, a daylong extravaganza of free activities and information for the whole family. You can take the behind-the-scene tours and visit a dazzling array of interactive displays.

The Port of Long Beach isn't just one of the world's busiest seaports, it's one of the great wonders of the modern world. And Port Fest is your passport to adventure – it's the best way to check out the Port, its giant machines, and all that's involved in protecting the environment and improving security.

The festivities will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and include children's activities and musical and dance performances by groups from the local community. You can see what creatures live in the harbor at our environmental projects display. You can see one of our new security submersible robots and the machine that monitors air quality at the Port. We'll also be handing out free tree seedlings at our community booth – take one home for planting in your backyard!

Parking is free at the Queen Mary, and shuttle buses will bring you to Green Port Fest. But better yet, you can reach the event via public transit – the Port will mail you a free day pass on Long Beach Transit to take you downtown. From downtown Long Beach you can reach Port Fest by the free Long Beach Transit Passport Bus or on foot over Queensway Bridge. Call (562) 590-4121 to request your free day pass for Long Beach Transit.

For more information, click here.

Contact: Art Wong, Port of Long Beach Assistant Director of Communications/Public Information Officer, (562) 590-4123, (562) 619-5665 (cell), or wong@polb.com.